Guide to financial underwriting and large cases

For intermediary use only – not for use with your clients
Introduction

The basic aim of financial underwriting is to make sure the sum assured, income benefit, and total level of cover each customer has is appropriate for them. It establishes insurable interest exists by identifying the reason for cover, helping us to avoid early lapses, guard against anti-selection, and prevent fraudulent claims and your client from being over-insured.

This guide details the different reasons for cover and explains the underwriting considerations for each of them including any maximum levels of cover and information required.

Financial underwriting involves two stages:

- The first stage involves you, a financial adviser, as you will assess the suitability of product types to best match your client’s needs and choose the appropriate level of benefit and/or sum assured.

- The second stage involves an underwriter, who will assess larger cases that reach Zurich’s financial underwriting limits. However, the company reserves the right to request additional financial information on individual cases, if needed.

Personal protection

Personal and family protection
Your clients can, within reason, choose any level of cover. However, the amount of cover should always be based on the individual’s need(s) taking into account their current income and liabilities. It should be for a sufficient level of cover for now and can include appropriate flexibility for future needs. Affordability will be a consideration and existing plans should always be taken into account.

We usually allow cover up to the following maximum sums assured:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Age(s)</th>
<th>Multiples of income</th>
<th>Life cover</th>
<th>Critical illness</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Up to 39</td>
<td>30x</td>
<td>10x</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>40 – 49</td>
<td>20x</td>
<td>10x</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>50 +</td>
<td>15x</td>
<td>10x</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notes:

- These maximum amounts are based on the total level of cover your client has including any death-in-service benefits and cover held anywhere else in the market.
- For very high earners a maximum level of cover may operate.
- Cover for your client’s primary residential mortgage and/or cover for a potential inheritance tax liability will be allowed in addition to cover for income.
- Cover for a joint mortgage is normally submitted on a joint life basis. If written as two single life plans then the excess cover i.e. the amount over their 50% share of the liability, will be assessed using the multiples of income formula to determine whether the total level of cover on each life is acceptable. For example, a couple have a mortgage for £1,500,000; if they choose to take out two single life plans for £1,500,000 then the remaining £750,000 will be assessed depending on their income.
Inheritance tax liability (IHT)
The level of cover should be equal to your client’s potential inheritance tax liability after all appropriate allowances and reliefs have been taken into account.

Examples of the allowances or reliefs that can be used to reduce the level of tax to be paid include:

• business property.
• agricultural property.
• qualifying shareholdings in unquoted companies.
• gifts to charity.
• gifts to political parties.

Please see http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/inheritancetax/ for the latest information on tax rates and allowances.

Buy-to-let property cover
Whilst there are no problems in offering life cover for ‘buy to let’ loans or mortgages, the need for critical illness cover may not be as clear. In the event of a property owner suffering from one of the specified critical illnesses, as their tenant(s) are likely to still be renting the property and paying rent, the only loss of income may be due to the need to employ someone to help administer and maintain the buy-to-let properties owned by your client.

As there may not be a financial justification for the critical illness cover, we give individual consideration to each application for these purposes.

Housepersons and students
We accept applications for life and critical illness cover from housepersons, even when there is no loss of income on death or disability, as we assume we are covering the cost of employing staff to perform general household duties and childcare.

Life cover is usually restricted to £1,000,000 and critical illness to £500,000. Amounts over these levels will require a financial questionnaire to be completed and will be subject to individual consideration.

We also accept life and critical illness applications from students, even when there is no loss of income on death or disability, as we assume there is a need for some cover as they are likely to have student loans. However, we usually restrict cover to £150,000 until your client is established in a full-time occupation.
Business protection

Keyperson protection
The cover required for keyperson protection should be based on the estimated amount needed to replace lost profits until profitability is restored to the required level, and to meet any additional costs such as recruitment and training expenses.

The Business Protection Adviser Tool can help you determine the appropriate level of cover for your client.

Keyperson cover is usually calculated using one of these methods:

Actual impact method
This method represents a detailed but accurate approach to quantifying the expected financial loss on the death or critical illness of a keyperson. This method is based on the loss of revenue (turnover) less any savings (e.g. the salary and/or profit share of the keyperson), less any payments for a replacement over the period of expected loss plus any ‘one off’ costs.

The Business Protection Adviser Tool provides further information on using this method.

Multiple of salary
The second method, most often used for an employee, is based on a multiple of the keyperson’s salary, including the value of any benefits in kind.

- Up to 7 x the total remuneration package can be considered for life cover.
- For critical illness cover up to 5 x the total remuneration package can be considered.

Multiple of profits
The third method is a multiple of profits, based on the loss of profits caused by the keyperson’s absence.

We will usually allow the following maximum multiples:

- 5 x net profit or 2 x gross profit for life cover.
- 3 x net profit for critical illness cover.

The net profit figure used is usually the pre-tax amount.
Proportion of payroll
Using this method, the keyperson’s contribution to turnover is measured. Their salary is divided by the total payroll, multiplied by turnover, multiplied by the estimated years for the business to recover.

For example:
Salary £100,000 x Turnover £20m x 2yrs recovery = £2m
Total payroll £2m

This method may not be appropriate where a shareholding director takes a low salary, or is remunerated largely by dividends. It will definitely be inappropriate for a partner.

Share purchase/partnership protection
The sum assured for life or critical illness cover should be the current value of the shares or the specified value in the agreement.

Ways in which a company can be valued:

Price Earnings Ratio (PER)
The PER for a company is the share price divided by the earnings per share.
The value of the company is then calculated by multiplying the net profit by the PER.
You can find a list of industry PER’s in the Financial Times newspaper or online – you will need to identify and select the relevant and appropriate sector from the listed PER’s to calculate the appropriate value.

Net Asset Value (NAV)
The NAV is a valuation of the company’s assets that includes the value of the building(s) and the stock that the company owns less any liabilities that the company has.

Usually a valuation of a company will be done using both the PER and NAV methods as a reasonably accurate value can be obtained.

Average Net Profit
The Average Net Profit for the last three years is multiplied by seven and then by the percentage shareholding of the applicant.
Evidence requirements

The table below shows the financial evidence we need for different levels and types of protection cover.

When using this table you must remember that we will take into account existing cover with us.

The Financial Questionnaire is the main source of financial evidence and includes information about your client’s existing cover, number of dependants, salary and any liabilities.

Notes:
The applicant must complete the Financial Questionnaire – we do not require this to be countersigned by any third party.

For business protection the underwriting requirements are based on the level of cover required for each life assured (not the total cover for the business).

For example:
If four directors require life cover of £800,000 each, subject to no other cover being held or applied for on each life, no financial evidence would be required even though the total cover in respect of the business is for £3,200,000.

<tr>

<td>£2,000,001 to £5,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Critical illness plans</td>
<td>£800,001 to £1,500,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
All applications from companies for business protection when the proposed level of cover for any one individual exceeds £3,500,000 (life cover) or £1,500,000 (critical illness cover) must be accompanied by audited accounts covering the last three years.

Independent evidence
If we need independent corroborative evidence, the purpose of the cover will determine what additional financial evidence we will require. We have listed below the types of independent evidence that we need for each scenario.

Family protection
Evidence of income from employer or accountant e.g. P60’s.

Inheritance tax
Accountant’s or solicitor’s letter to confirm the value of the estate on which IHT liability has been calculated.

Loan or mortgage cover (including personal residential or business loans)
Offer letter or loan/mortgage agreement. If a business loan – audited accounts covering a period of the last three years.

Keyperson cover
Audited accounts covering a period of the last three years. Proof of income from auditors or accountants to illustrate the need for the cover.

Partnership or shareholder protection assurance
Audited accounts covering a period of the last three years. Sight of the partnership or share purchase agreement.
Income Protection Plan

Personal cover
The maximum income benefit allowed is 60% of pre-disability earnings up to £45,000, plus 33.33% of earnings over £45,000. Overall maximum £100,000 per year.

For your employed clients, ‘earnings’ means their gross salary excluding benefits in kind. For your self-employed clients, ‘earnings’ means their Net Relevant Earnings.

When your client is in claim the ‘maximum benefit rule’ applies and we make deductions from the amount paid to them for:

- any income from any other disability insurance
- any pension income being paid through early retirement
- any income earned by the claimant
- the single person’s Employment Support Allowance.

Although the ‘maximum benefit rule’, in effect, comes into operation when a claim is made, it is important that the life assured ensures their likely future benefits are realistic given their current income.

Covering dividend income
We will not consider using dividend income for income protection.

Instead, for directors of an incorporated company we will use PAYE salary plus their share of the company profit. This is a more favourable approach as there will be instances where dividends may not yet have been declared.
Keyperson cover
A maximum benefit of twice the total remuneration package (remuneration includes P11D benefits, bonuses and pension contributions). Overall maximum of £200,000 per year.

Criteria for keyperson IPP
If your client fits the following criteria they can apply for a keyperson version of the plan:

- The life assured must be a keyperson to the business.
- The life assured must be less than a 50% shareholder.
- The company must not be making a loss.
- There should be at least seven employees other than the directors.
- The company should have been trading for at least three years.
